All matinees at the opera house will begin at 4 o'clock instead of 4:15 as heretofore.

The gallery enjoyed the play at the opera house Friday night, judging from the long and loud applause which they gave.

If you stay at your home in the country Wednesday you will get awfully lonesome, for everybody else is coming to the circus.

If you want to break up the circus Wednesday afternoon just ring the fire bell. Folks in Newberry will leave a circus any time to go to a fire.

There will be a hallowe'en party at the new school house at St. Phillips next Friday night. A large attendance is expected.

"The Millionaire Baby" will be seen at the opera house on Thursday, matinee and night. Matinee performance begins at 4 o'clock instead of 4:15.

Chief Duncan touched Pig Tucker Monday morning and found that Tucker, like Dan Tucker of old, had tucked two pints of booze under his clothes. The chief took the stuff from Tucker and invited him around to police headquarters.

The road from Kinards to Gary has been dragged by Mr. Jacob Dominick, from Gary to Jalapa by Mr. Rufus M. Werts and from Jalapa to Parr's plantation by Mr. E. B. Feagle. These heroes of the drag deserve the "well done" of all who travel this road.

We noticed in some of our exchanges where the boast was made that some farmer had made about 200 gallons of molasses from an acre of land. Well, that's nothing. Dr. J. William Folk of Jalapa made over 300 gallons on one acre and the flavor of them molasses is something to make you talk about for a long, long time.

nection with The Herald and News, at the combination for only $1.49.

The farmers are not selling much cotton on a declining market as has been their habit in years gone. They are going to hold for higher prices. The warehouses are all filled and lots of cotton is awaiting the building of additional warehouses. The farmer hereabouts doesn't have to sell. He can store and get more money on his cotton than he expected to get if he sold.

Wife beaters will find it better to dwell on the house-top than to dwell one moment in Judge Player's court room. Tom Ruff, growing tired of the monotony of his married life, indulged in the happy diversion of beating his wife. Of course her feelings were considerably hurt, and as balm for her wounded heart and back the judge gave days. Not having his cheque book Tom a dose as follows: $30 or 30 with him, he was induced to join the Improved and Benevolent Order of W. O. R. K.

A bunch of gamblers was rounded up and brought into Magistrate Player's court and given their medicine. They were Jess Watts, Jack DeWalt, Ernest Douglas, Elias Worthy, Will Hunter and Johnnie Harstin. Being Hunter's and DeWalt's first offense, the judge gave them $5 or 30 days. Worthy turned State's evidence, $3 or 30 days. Jack DeWalt, in whose house the gambling took place, got $35 or 30 days. Days being more plentiful with Jack than dollars, he took the days.

Death of Mrs. Eliza Robertson Harmon. On October 6 our beloved sister was called home, after a long, useful, unselfish life. She was a kind, thoughtful neighbor and friend, a loving mother and earnest Christian. She was always interested in the Lord's work and a cheerful giver. She leaves a husband, eight children, a loving mother, two sisters and one brother to mourn her death.

For some time she had been very feeble and no doubt gladly welcomed the message from up higher, for she was ready to enter into the joys of her Lord.

Instead of leaving the room, he blurts out the secret that Nancy is his wife, and insists that she go with him. The revelation is a thunderbolt.

The next day, in a repentant state of mind, Robert rides his horse beneath the window of Nancy's room and pleads for her forgiveness. She can not forgive. He draws a pistol, fires a bullet into his own heart and drops from his horse, dead!

The matinee hour of beginning the picture shows at the opera house has been changed from 4.30 in the afternoon to 4 o'clock. The evening hour remains the same, 7.30 o'clock.

Negro Shot.

There was a shooting scrape at Ruff's store, near S. P. Crotwell's, Saturday night about dark. Mr. George Suber, son of Mr. Calvin Suber, shot James Cook, a negro living on Mr. Calvin Suber's place. They had had some words before leaving town. The negro suffered two flesh wounds, one in the left hand and the other in the right leg, the bullet passing through the leg above the knee and coming out behind the knee joint. Dr. Dunn attended the negro and says he will soon be all right again.
